

The Raven and the Fox

Gerald Rose

The Raven and the Fox

Gerald Rose

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

A raven sees some cheese.

He takes the cheese.

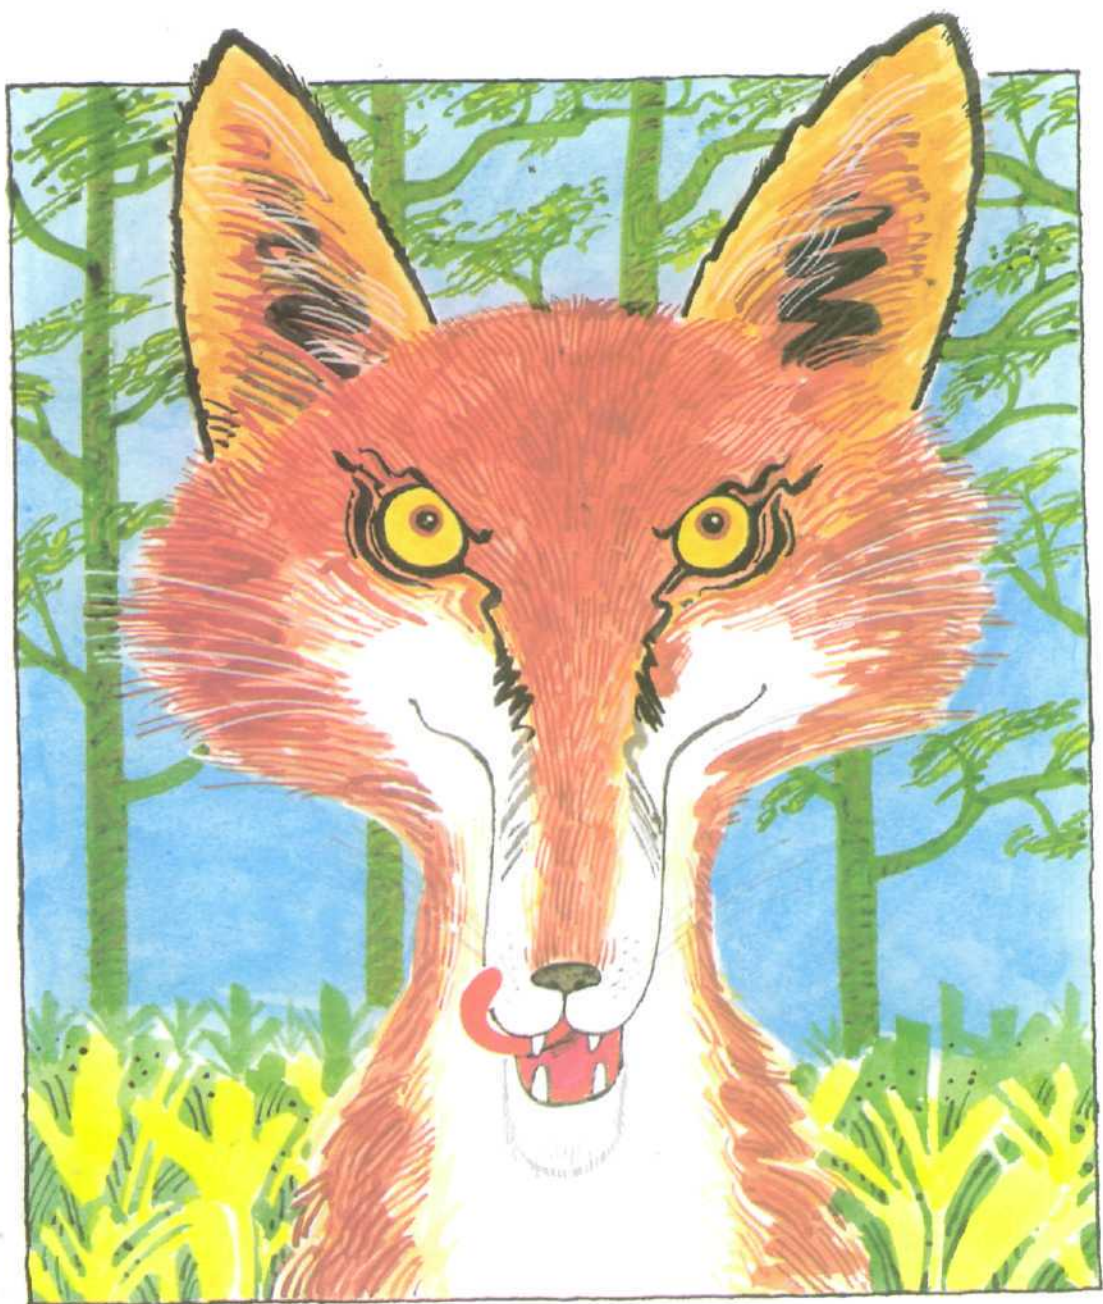

He flies to a tall tree.

A fox smells the cheese.

Then she sees the raven.

“What a beautiful bird you are,” says
the fox.

The raven is very happy.

The fox says, "You have a big beak and you have beautiful wings.

Can you sing a sweet song?

Please sing a sweet song for me.”

Caw!

The raven opens his beak to sing.
The cheese falls out!

The fox catches the cheese and runs away with it.

The raven is very angry.

Cambridge Storybooks

Level 2: for young learners (beginners)

There are lots more books to enjoy in the Cambridge Storybooks series:

Lucy's Box

Dan's Box

What's the Time?

Please, Miss Miller!

The Raven and the Fox

The Lion and the Mouse

Books are available:

- individually
- in packs of 6
- in mixed packs of 6 different books:
 - Teachers, Tales and Magic Boxes

The raven has some cheese,
but the fox wants it, too!

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS
www.cambridge.org

ISBN 0-521-00721-6

9 780521 007214 >